CLASS HISTORY

The class of '71 had its beginning in September 1965, when sixteen of the least promising "students" this school had ever seen were ushered, terrified, into Miss Pierson's homeroom. No one would have believed it then, but in the years ahead we would go on to surprise everyone—ourselves included, with all manner of mighty deeds and intellectual achievements. We began in this first year, and went on in our next year, by contributing more money to pay for the school bus than any other class. Oh, yes—this was the year of the "terrible trio".

By September 1966, the thirteen survivors and new additions to the class were considered ready to be entrusted to the care of Mr. and Mrs. Hautt. Pam Dow and "Sunshine" became permanent members of the family while Daniel Doremus and John Marshall, the Ping Pong Champ, came and left. This was the year of "Dana Roberts: the one-man class", and the year that the "royal flush" became a popular terrorist tactic. It was in '66-'67 that we began to make our presence felt.

September 1967 brought us a new freedom and a new set of influences. We began to feel the influence of such men as Mr. Taylor and Mr. True, who profoundly affected our thinking. We grew to nineteen in our freshmen year as Doug Gardner returned, "Carmy" arrived, and "Vide" dropped in and Kathy Murdoch dropped out. "Pablo" and Charlie Band spent their time at Hazen's playing pinball. Blaine Scribner stayed for a year then left to grow coffee in Columbia. '67-'68 was a growing year. A winning season in Jr. High basketball helped to make it exciting.

In September 1968 we were faced with Mr. Allen's Biology classes and a growing sophomore class of twenty-four. Our active social life as a class included bowling every two weeks and the first of Dave Carmichael's now famous parties. (Another of Dave's achievements was his self-nomination for class president.) We were a class without direction and very impressed with ourselves. This year we had our first exposure to Mr. McCowan and Modern World History. Casualties included: Mr. Erickson and Mr. Katz on "their" side and Cindy Paris, Bonita Stanton, and Tim Tynes on ours. Some of the new additions were: Vic MacLeod, Scott Gordon, Sandy Cavallo, and Kathy Murdock (again).

As September 1969 became a reality we began to see how close we were coming to the end. S.A.T.'s and conferences with "Doc" Johnson caused us to begin thinking about college. And we had our largest class ever—thirty people! We fondly remember Mr. Taylor's "shocking" U.S. History classes. "Geoff", Bob Anderson, and Dave Pearson all dropped in at the same time making sure that things would never be the same again. Rosemary arrived, near the end. Rob Wells and his bataka bats came this year . . . We lost Mr. Edwards to Florida and "Carmy" and Doug Gardner (again), but we began to feel like a class.

September 1970. The top of the ladder—finally! This year we became a class; we achieved a kind of unity we had never felt before. New classmates Ken Colby, John Zvara, and Dan Olinger helped. . . . This year, towards the end, had to be the best year we've ever seen at L.C.A. Chorale tour was a high point for many of us. The new awakening, very near the end, was the high point for many more. Our class found another new member—Jesus.

This year was full of new beginnings—the way every year should be. The Independent Study Project was a huge success for all of us. Our Senior Trip was a climax to a rough year of classes. Graduation itself was not an ending but a beginning. The final chapters of the history of the class of '71 are still a long way from being written.

CLASS PROPHECY

The L.C.A. campus is filled with strange sounds, strange smells, and a lot of strange people today. The sounds are those of slogans, obscenities, and screams; the smells are those of tear gas and smoke. The people are the members of the class of '71; it seems there's a riot taking place

... The first person we encounter is Dave Swanson who is bumming money for gasoline to make molotov cocktails, closely followed by Dave Pearson, who is dancing across the parking lot while dribbling a basketball and yelling "I got soul, I got soul!" The situation seems to be in competent hands: Lt. Kevin Weeks of the Lexington Contingent of the National Guard is standing on the hood of his jeep observing the scene and moving his men into strategic positions. Behind him are John Zvara, one of the helmeted, club-wielding policemen, and Scott Gordon, the man behind the policemen, who is filling cans of mace from a large tank for the distribution to our boys in blue.

At the other end of the parking lot the crowd is advancing. Dana Roberts is urging the rioters on with his wolf call between stopping to shave every five minutes while Donna Taylor is in the back row yelling obscenities and hurling bricks and bottles at policemen. Margaret Phillips picks up a fuming can of tear gas and throws it back at Lt. Kevin Weeks. He runs.

Taking advantage of the situation is Geoff Hiscox, an organ grinder whose monkey begs money from passers-by. A little farther down is Lorinda King who calls out: "Peanuts, popcorn, mescaline!" Still further down is Jaan Vaino, a Mallo Cup manufacturer selling his product. Kathy Murdoch is seen handing out Gordon College pamphlets to everyone she sees, while Liz Williams is seen standing alone in the middle of the lawn, screaming "This is stupid!"

A number of people don't seem to be taking part: Ken Colby is peacefully playing his bass guitar near the wall, while nearby, Pam Dow is too occupied with stroking Ray Jone's bald head to realize what is happening. Joni Field is calmly observing the event, clutching a half-filled bottle of cherry brandy as Rosemary Kumpunen stands in the phone booth with a bottle of tranquilizers, waiting for the phone to ring.

Joining the action again, we find nurses Judy Fagerstrom, Janet Cacciola, and Cindy Busfield treating Vic MacLeod who lies motionless on the ground, whispering "What happened?". A sound is heard overhead and Bob Anderson is seen leaning out of a helicopter taking aerial photographs. Jim Pike is spotted picking the pockets of the victims.

What's this? Danny Olinger is being carried away, screaming, to a police wagon, as Pablo James, a WBCN reporter, holds a microphone in his face. Olinger will be locked up for his own protection. It seems that he told one bad joke too many and the crowd reacted by trying to kill him. Now that the cause for the riot has been removed, everyone resumes hugging and crying and talking over old times. Ray Knox pulls into his old parking spot as Sandy Cavallo watches and says "Isn't that sweet?"

Thus begins the first reunion of the class of '71.

SOCCER

Despite only having three starters return the Soccer Team had a good season with an 8-5 record. The high scoring honors were shared by Bob Anderson, last year's high scorer, and sophomore newcomer Al Dawson.

Though most of the team were fairly new, they managed to score 31 goals with just about everyone being involved in the scoring. While we lost to the stronger teams, we won those games which we had predicted we would win.

This has been the second consecutive winning season under the direction of Coach Rob Wells.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

The Trojans had a good year with a 12-7 overall record. The team got an all around effort from Dave Pearson and Kevin Weeks being used for board strength, Al Dawson and John Zvara doing the scoring and Vic MacLeod as the team's play-maker. The team had the strong backing of Ray Jones, Bob Anderson, and Eric Sweitzer.

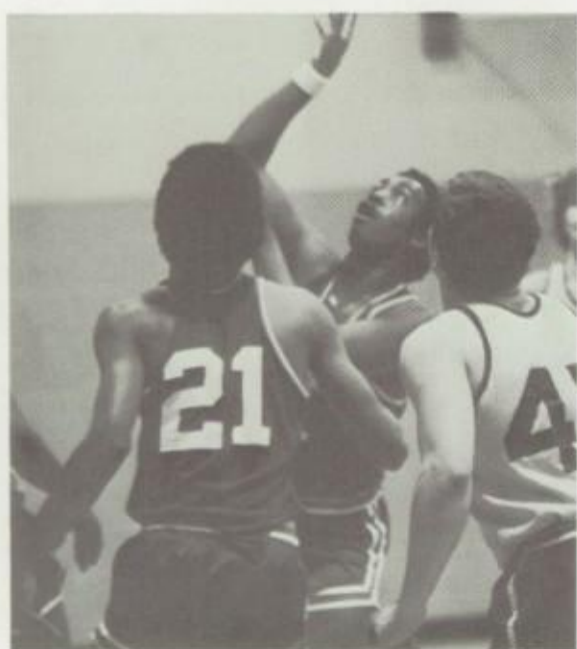

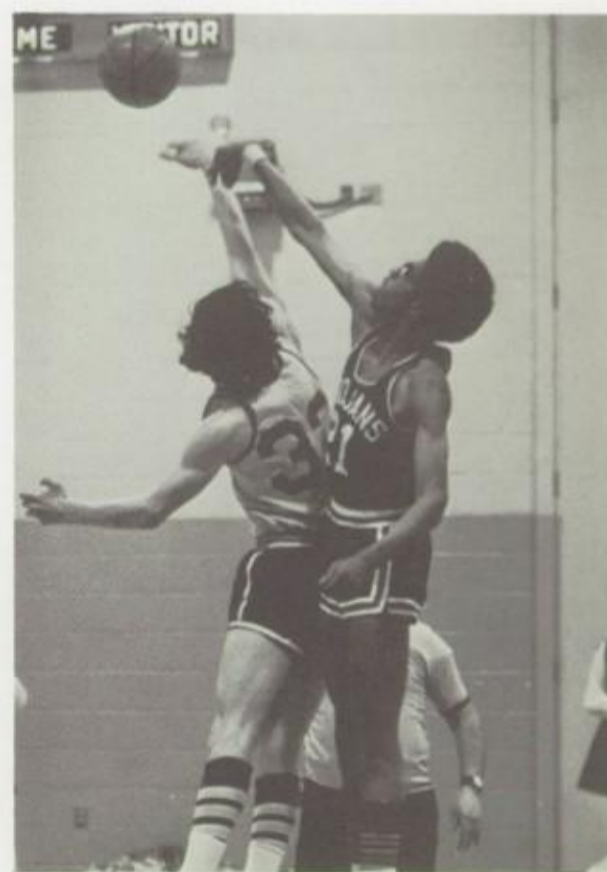

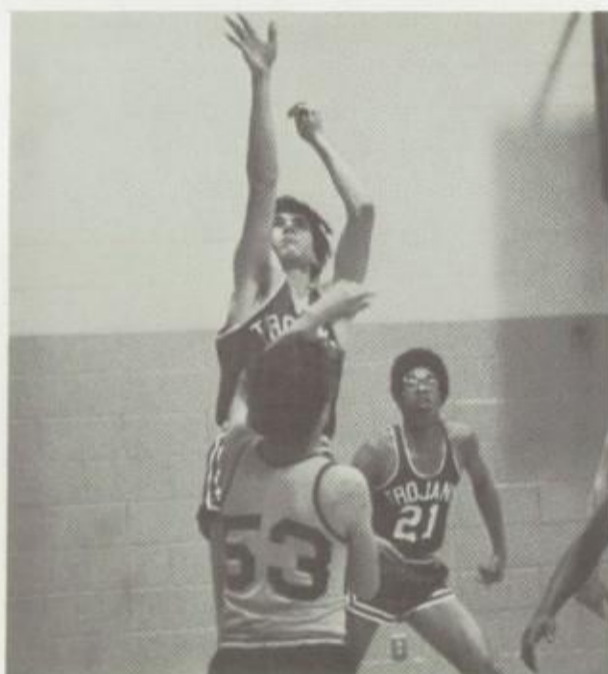

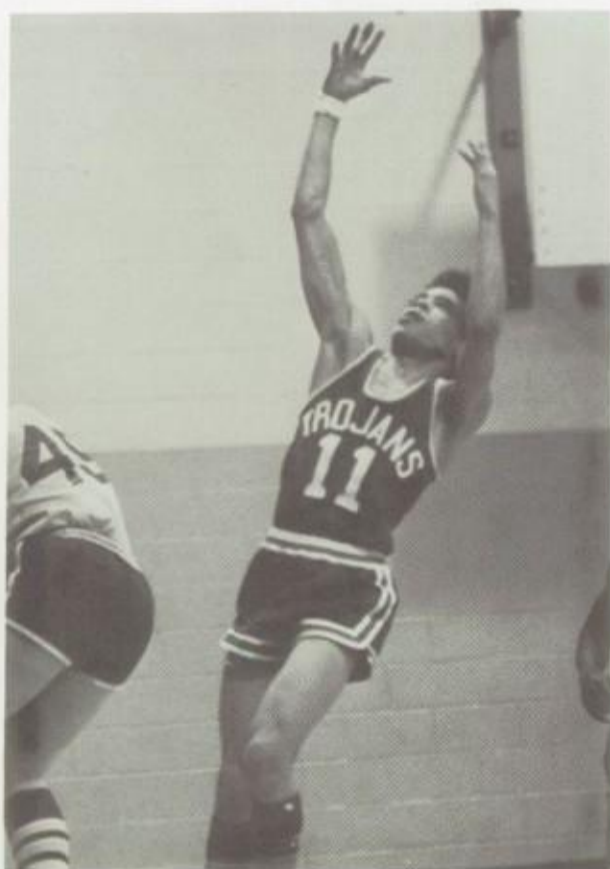

At the tourney with two seconds left, Al Dawson put in a clutch basket to help beat last year's champions Eastern Mennonite. In the next two games the Trojan's suffered losses to Delaware County Christian Day School and Christopher Dock Christian School. But at the conclusion of the tourney the L.C.A. varsity boys were able to walk away with the fourth place trophy.

J.V. BASKETBALL

With seemingly a little bit of experience, the Junior Varsity Team had a fair season with a 9-10 record. The team was lead by playmaker and leading scorer David Rouse while David Baker Taylor and David Bruce Taylor supplied the rebounding strength for the team. A lot of promise was shown in the greatly improved David Bruce Taylor for next season. The Junior Varsity Team had some added strength at the end of the season when Eric Sweitzer played some Junior Varsity games in addition to the Varsity games.

The '70-'71 Baseball Team had a disappointing season ending up with a 5-7 record. Considering that the squad lost some of the starters to the Senior Trip, it got strong support from the remaining members and special credit is given to David Bruce Taylor, David Rouse, and Geoff Hiscox. With the majority of the players back next year the team is looking forward to a more rewarding season.
